A Unique Civilian–Military Partnership

Servicemembers Opportunity Colleges (SOC) is a consortium of national higher education associations and over 1800 institutional members. SOC functions in cooperation with the Department of Defense (DOD), the Military Services, including the National Guard and the Coast Guard, to help meet the voluntary higher education needs of servicemembers.

In the past, members of the Military Services who wanted a college education faced seemingly insurmountable hurdles:

- Rigid institutional residency requirements and wide variations in transfer policies among colleges often meant that students accumulated academic credit from several institutions but were unable to earn a degree from any one of them.
- Many colleges and universities neither awarded credit for specialized military training nor recognized learning acquired through work outside a collegiate setting.
- Colleges and universities were not accustomed to serving the needs of learners who moved frequently, so servicemembers were unable to complete their degrees at a single institution.
- Given the work and training routine on military installations, commuting to classes at a campus was hard to arrange during off-duty hours, even when colleges were located nearby.

With financial support from the Carnegie Corporation, the Fund for the Improvement of Postsecondary Education, and the U.S. Departments of Defense and Education, SOC was created in 1972 to overcome these obstacles. Sponsored by the American Association of State Colleges and Universities (AASCU) and the American Association of Community Colleges (AACC), SOC works closely with civilian and military educators to provide college-level educational opportunities to servicemembers and their families by:

- Helping the higher education community to understand and respond to the special needs of servicemembers;
- Advocating the flexibility needed to improve access to and availability of educational programs for servicemembers;
- Helping the Military Services, including the National Guard and the Coast Guard, understand the limits and requirements of higher education;
- Helping the higher education community understand the resources, limits, and requirements of the Military Services, including the National Guard and the Coast Guard; and,
- Seeking to strengthen the working relationships between the military and higher education.

SOC Consortium institutional members confer the full range of associate, baccalaureate, and graduate degrees. Some act as “home colleges” for servicemembers who, by prior agreement, earn academic credits elsewhere. Many SOC Consortium colleges, universities, and technical institutes offer on-base programs, and some serve military installations overseas.

Today, hundreds of thousands of servicemembers, as well as civilian employees of DOD, the Military Services, including the National Guard and the Coast Guard, and their family members enroll annually in college degree programs. These programs require a strong commitment and effective coordination among academic institutions and agencies, the Military Services, including the National Guard and the Coast Guard, and the Office of the Secretary of Defense. Stimulating that commitment and providing that coordination are two of the main functions of SOC, which operates under terms of a contract between AASCU, the fiscal and administrative agent for the SOC Consortium, and the Defense Activity for Non-Traditional Education Support (DANTES), the contract monitor for the Department of Defense.

The SOC Principles and Criteria

To achieve its goals, SOC is based on principles established by the higher education community through the SOC Advisory Board, the Office of the Secretary of Defense (OSD), and the Military Services, including the National Guard and the Coast Guard. SOC Consortium member colleges and universities pledge to support the SOC Principles and Criteria.

The SOC Principles are distilled from the cumulative experience of educational institutions that have been successful in working with servicemembers.

Principle 1. In order to enhance their military effectiveness and to achieve their educational, vocational, and career goals, servicemembers should share in the postsecondary educational opportunities available to other citizens.

Principle 2. Educational programs for servicemembers should rely primarily on programs, courses, and services provided by appropriately accredited institutions and organizations, including high schools, postsecondary vocational and technical schools, colleges, and universities.

Principle 3. To enhance access to undergraduate educational opportunities for servicemembers, institutions should maintain a necessary flexibility of programs and procedures, particularly in admissions, credit transfer, and recognition of other applicable learning, including that gained in the military; in scheduling and format of courses; and in academic residency requirements to offset servicemembers' mobility, isolation from campuses, and part-time student status.

The SOC Criteria create a framework for institutions to translate SOC Principles into performance and action. The SOC Criteria stipulate that institutional policies and practices be fair, equitable, and effective in recognizing the special and often limiting conditions faced by military students.

Criterion 1. Transfer of Credit. SOC institutions design transfer practices for servicemembers to minimize loss of credit and avoid duplication of course work.

Criterion 2. Academic Residency Requirements. SOC Consortium institutions limit academic residency for active-duty servicemembers to no more than 25 percent of the undergraduate degree program, with courses taken at any time during the program of study. SOC Consortium institutions that offer one hundred percent of an undergraduate degree online may require thirty percent of that degree in residence. Colleges joining SOC primarily to participate in ConAP are exempt from this criterion.

Criterion 3. Crediting Learning from Military Experience. SOC Consortium institutions award credit recommended by the American Council on Education's (ACE) Guide to the Evaluation of Educational Experiences in the Armed Services for military training and experience when applicable to servicemembers' degree programs.

Criterion 4. Crediting Extracurricular Learning. SOC Consortium institutions award credit for at least one of the nationally-recognized testing programs and for other types of learning acquired outside the classroom in non-academic settings.

In addition to the Principles and Criteria, SOC

Consortium colleges and universities observe other guidelines to facilitate admission and enrollment of qualified servicemembers and to enhance their study opportunities. The policies and practices of SOC Consortium institutions include:

- Recognizing the GED high school equivalency certificate/diploma;
- Accepting and recording previously successful postsecondary study as part of a servicemember's requirements, if applicable;
- Recognizing learning gained from specialized training and experience in the Military Services or elsewhere;
- Establishing competency by nationally recognized means, such as standardized tests;
- Publicizing alternative admission procedures available to servicemembers and waiving formal admission procedures for those seeking enrollment in course work for transfer to another institution;
- Conducting a timely evaluation of the educational records and relevant experiences of servicemembers.

SOC Operating Programs

SOC operates a variety of programs that give servicemembers opportunities to:

- Earn associate or bachelor's degrees while in the Army (SOCAD), Navy (SOCNAV), Marine Corps (SOCMAR), or Coast Guard (SOC-COAST).
- Select a college concurrently with enlistment in the Army or Army Reserve (ConAP).
- Earn college credits and degrees while in the Army National Guard (SOCGuard).

SOC Associate and Bachelor's Degree Networks

SOC coordinates a far-reaching program of associate and bachelor's degree networks for Army, Navy, Marine Corps, and Coast Guard personnel, provided by civilian colleges and universities serving military installations worldwide. Servicemembers may take courses in their off-duty hours in classrooms on or near military installations in the United States, overseas, or on Navy and Coast Guard ships. They may enroll in "distance learning" courses offered online, and through CD-ROM, PDA, videocassette, television, radio, correspondence, etc. In most cases, the programs are also available to family members of active-duty servicemembers.

Key components* of these college programs are:

- A "home college" where students complete their academic residency. When they move to new duty stations, they transfer their courses and military experience credit obtained at the new location back to the home college which awards the degree when all its requirements are met.

- A Student Agreement that acts as a contract-for-degree between the home college and service-member – a degree plan that evaluates all prior learning, lists academic requirements to be fulfilled, and guarantees award of the degree when the requirements are met.
- Guaranteed transferability of college credits. Within each curriculum area, participating colleges guarantee to accept each other's credits.

*The three “key components” listed above apply only to colleges that are participating in SOCAD, SOCNAV, SOCMAR, or SOCCOAST degree network programs.

Within SOCAD, Army Career Degrees are college degrees that translate Army training into college credit that matches requirements in MOS-related college degrees. They show soldiers precise options for meeting college requirements with Army training, in the classrooms of more than 100 SOCAD colleges, or by distance learning and testing. See the SOCAD Web page to view the current list of Army Career Degrees.

eArmyU is the Army's educational initiative designed to offer eligible enlisted soldiers the opportunity to complete a college degree “anytime, anywhere.” eArmyU provides eligible Soldier-students access to over 3,000 online courses fitting into more than 146 certificate and degree programs. All eArmyU institutions are SOC members; those offering associate and bachelor's degrees also hold SOCAD membership. Additional information about eArmyU can be found online at: <http://www.earmyu.com/>.

The Navy has selected a number of “partner colleges” to offer career-field related associate and bachelor's degrees through distance learning for various Ratings. Each Rating has two or three partner colleges offering degrees at both the two-year and four-year level. These career college partners, collectively known as the Navy College Program Distance Learning Partnership (NCPDLP), became operational January 1, 2001. The Naval Education and Training Professional Development and Technology Center (NETPDTC), the organization directing the details of the partner college implementation, runs the program through its network of Navy College Offices on most naval installations worldwide. The role of SOCNAV within the partner college arrangement figures prominently. All partner colleges are integrated into the SOCNAV system, guaranteeing course transferability not just among the NCPDLP members, but also among the entire SOCNAV family of 100 colleges.

The Navy College Program for Afloat College Education (NCPACE) provides academic skills and college courses at the undergraduate and graduate levels to the sea duty Sailor. All NCPACE courses are from institutions with SOCNAV affiliation, providing Sailors a seamless transfer of credits among entities within the Navy College Program.

Concurrent Admissions Program (ConAP)

The Concurrent Admissions Program (ConAP) is a partnership between the Army Recruiting Command and 1,800 participating colleges. Servicemembers Opportunity Colleges assists with the implementation and management of the program and serves as liaison between Army Recruiters, ConAP colleges, Army Education centers, and the higher education community. ConAP goals are to increase enlistment of college-capable soldiers, increase the number of soldiers and Army veterans and reservists enrolled in college, and increase use of Montgomery GI Bill education benefits.

When Soldiers enlist in the Army or Army Reserve, recruiters encourage them to select a ConAP college and send the school the College Referral and Intent to Enroll form, stating their intent to enroll during or after their enlistment. Colleges acknowledge the Soldiers' intent and provide guidelines about applying for admission not more than one year before the expected entry date, beginning the college academic experience, using distance learning, and staying in touch by e-mail and the college Web site. Most enlistees are high-school diploma graduates with Montgomery GI Bill education benefits.

For more detailed information, see:

<http://www.soc.aascu.org/conap/>

SOCGuard

SOCGuard was established in 1989 as an outreach program to integrate postsecondary education with the Army National Guard (ARNG) Strength Maintenance activities supporting recruiting and retention through education. Since then, SOCGuard's mission has evolved to support Education Services Officers (ESOs) as they explore partnership opportunities with institutions in their state. Today, SOCGuard assists ESOs in facilitating and developing a broad range of partnerships in education between colleges and universities and the ARNG. SOCGuard's outreach activities include college workshops, professional education conferences, ARNG meetings, and visits to college campuses. SOCGuard also serves as a liaison between the higher education community and the Army National Guard.

The primary goals of the SOC/ARNG partnership are to:

- Link ARNG civilian and military education and training needs with degree programs offered by local colleges and universities;
- Develop partnerships between local colleges and universities and the ARNG to enhance postsecondary education opportunities for Guard members;
- Seek and obtain widespread participation and cooperation of colleges in each state on behalf of the ARNG;
- Assist ARNG Education Services Officers in understanding and marketing education benefits; and
- Assist the ARNG to maximize the participation of soldiers in federal and state education benefit programs.

To achieve its goals, the SOCGuard staff works closely with ARNG headquarters and field personnel to provide instructional support and materials relevant to each state. In addition, SOCGuard is responsible for overseeing higher education policy, college and university partnerships, and systems in operation at the ARNG Education Support Center (ESC) in Little Rock, AR.

For more detailed information, see:

Services for Veterans

For veterans returning to civilian life to begin or continue study, civilian SOC Consortium institutions provide appropriate evaluation of their training, experience, and prior study as well as other services similar to those afforded servicemembers. Some SOC Criteria apply equally to veterans — admissions practices, transfer of credit, and recognition of other forms of learning, including military experience.

SOC National Office

The SOC national office is located in Washington, DC, where it maintains liaison with its 15 sponsoring higher education associations, the Department of Defense, DANTES, and the Military Services, including the National Guard and the Coast Guard. SOC's address is:
